FOREWORD

The publication of ILLINOIS LIBRARIES began January, 1919.

The first issue announced a meeting of the Chicago Library Club at which the subject for discussion was "After the War Library Problems."

What these problems have been between the first issue and December 1947 may be gauged by the subject headings and the type of cooperating organizations. No other 29 years in the history of libraries have been so packed with movements vital to the people and therefore vital in library service: Reconstruction, 1919; Depression; Planning (10 year); Pre-World War and World War II activities; and, now again Reconstruction.

The broad movements for library betterment are reflected in the many general articles, reports of the American Library Association activities and in the Proceedings of the Illinois Library Association for which ILLINOIS LIBRARIES has been, (until September 1947) the official organ.

The efforts of local librarians and trustees of libraries in the State to meet the crowding challenges have been, in part, recounted in ILLINOIS LIBRARIES. A goodly portion of the entries are to notations, brief, but significant, since they show the efforts made to adapt local library service to the current needs of the community and times.

Annually indexing began with volume 22, 1940.

With the publication of this Index covering the period 1919 through 1947, it is our plan to continue the annual index and every fifth year issue a cumulative volume.

It is hoped that the Index may serve both as a guide to source material on library service and library personnel in Illinois, and, as a bibliography of articles which may help with an understanding of library problems and Illinois procedure.

We wish to record our appreciation to the several persons (Ralph McCoy, Mrs. Bernice W. Karraker, Dorothy Bundy, Mrs. Helen Bessey* and Vera Goessling) whose assistance in the compilation contributed much to the final checking and editing of the approximate 30,000 entries which was done by Ida Faye Wright.

Grateful acknowledgment is due the several typists, Mrs. Marie Roberts, Edna Rector, Kathleen Gaffigan, Mary C. Murphy and Mary Winterbauer, who in addition to their regular work made the drafts used during the compilation and the final copy for the printers.

HELENE H. ROGERS,
Assistant State Librarian.

January, 1948.

Extension Service Dept.
The Illinois Library Extension Commission was created in 1909 and located in Decatur. In 1921 by legislative action it was consolidated with the State L. and became the Library Extension Division. Likewise in 1937 the Division became the Extension Service Dept. or Unit of the State L. To simplify entries these variations in legal set-up have been disregarded. The official title may be judged by the date of an entry.
